

To give you a more detailed idea of our stand on this question, you find here an English translation of a flyer about this topic which we distributed in Germany in February 2008 (some explanatory footnotes have been added):

Alliance against Conformity Bund gegen Anpassung

February 2008

Without birth control, the standard of living will continue to deteriorate.
But with birth control wages would increase.

And that would, according to our papers and magazines (STERN¹ etc.), be the worst thing of all. Because as long as there are overpopulated and in particular large, miserable and poorly off corners of the world, there will be an inexhaustible supply of wage squeezers. These are then either imported to counter strikes – which can be successful without overpopulation – ('misery following capital') or companies move to wretchedly poor foreign countries ('capital following misery', also known as 'capital export' or 'outsourcing'). This is why we have 'Equality worldwide!' in our emblem, and not for any idiotic 'moral' or 'social' reason. Today's developedness of the means of transportation (even for bulky and heavy goods) renders any strike relatively worthless without this equality, whilst the world rule by the USA respectively its companies, beside which there are a few last of the Mohicans such as Roche or Bayer on the assassination list, also creates a worldwide equality, namely that of the old industrial states with the cheap regions of the world – cheap because they have never had a even partly successful workers' movement (which, in its time, was able to force Bismarck and some of his colleagues in other industrial nations of the time to introduce real health and pension insurances whose contributions were not embezzled), but instead of it and for a very long time an oppressively high, wage-squeezing overpopulation. This equality – the equality of poverty and of being ordered around – is not what we want; we want equality of wealth, and that equality is only possible with birth control. This is why those who benefit from the current situation and, consequently, their press and schools which have been aligned once and for all since Stammheim², as well as also advertisement hoardings financed with our taxes,

¹ This is Germany's number one propaganda magazine, from its structure and method most comparable to the US-American Time Magazine; there certainly are analogous journals in any major country.

² 'Stammheim' is the name of the Stuttgart prison where after weeks of total isolation and degrading transferral from cell to cell four so-called terrorists whose release a group of airplane hijackers wanted to obtain were killed, in one case seriously hurt, in one night – the male prisoners were shot, the female prisoners hanged respectively stabbed (insufficiently, the victim survived). The official version, which is also spread by feature films, is untenable: this is not only shown by the impossibility of smuggling weapons into the world's best-guarded prison, notwithstanding the subsequent miraculous weapons' location shift from cell to cell, but also by the fact that one prisoner's corpse held 'his' weapon in his hand, which according to forensic medicine is impossible (obviously, inexperienced executioners had put it into the dead man's hand in order to feign a suicide). These murders diverted the public interest when Willy Brandt violated the German Constitution broadcast birth propaganda (and pass corresponding revolting laws with coarsely stupid justifications) and simultaneously vituperate birth control. But there will not be wealth for the masses without birth control (only riches and benefits for very, very few), and in addition our biosphere is 'sustainedly' ruined, changing relentlessly from beautiful and interesting nature to a feeding bowl for the wretched and regimented masses. This process is, incidentally, already now very much advanced – we would invite Sumatran rhinoceroses and Yangtze dolphins as witnesses for that if only they were still there to invite! (A worldwide level of poverty and a jungle of prohibition signs would not have saved them either: the poor in particular reproduce diligently, and then the shouting or moaning just starts again).

Environmental destruction has reached a new, galloping pace with 'biodiesel'; with the given gigantic population 'biodiesel' is worse, much worse than a thousand Chernobyls. Since it obviously only means that after the waste of our oil and coal (the so-called 'fossil fuels', i.e. the solar energy stored in plant remains over hundreds of millions of years) – which was largely senseless because by birth control at the right time it could almost have been avoided –, the plants of every single year of the present are to be used for the same purpose, and fields and nature are mutually exclusive, despite all the idiots. Biodiesel means that people are not only taking nature's space away for those plants they eat, but also now for combustion purposes. The plants for combustion are now competing with those for consumption (and also with what little nature there is left, which usually, and perversely, costs a kind of ransom money to see and which is plastered with prohibition signs), and combustion is crucial because otherwise there is no transport for people, food or any other goods (just as a reminder: because the auxiliary troops of the British imperialism had destroyed most of the Russian rail network, millions of people starved to death – also 'chowing down' is often only possible when the food actually arrives. Incidentally: these acts of destruction did not leave behind a good basis for an 'affluent society', i.e. one with economic buffer zones that can also afford liberal experiments instead of mere coercion). And if the coal and oil have already been burnt up and therefore annual plants have to be burnt instead, then this is not only for transport purposes, but also for all the other machines without which about 98% of today's massive population would literally have to starve to death; this is the price that even the craziest 'green' would have to pay for the return to the technological Middle Ages. And we haven't even included the heating in the bill...

What is bad is that due to the lack of scientific knowledge among the people – in this respect, the schools really teach almost exclusively shit – not even the law of conservation of energy is clear in people's heads, which means that real miracles (in the hard religious sense) of new sources of energy can be promised by the aligned media ('IQ is what's needed' and similar slogans, but not even a second Einstein could work out a way to circumvent the law of conservation of energy), whereby it is really only about the combustion of annual plants and therefore a very small part of the solar energy that falls onto our planet. (Any form of energy can be converted to any other – our immutable law states this too.) All energy on the Earth is converted solar energy, even that which you are now using to open or close your eyes; this is the only reason you have to eat occasionally, the plants have taken care of the conversion, you yourself only burn the results; although there is no more a flame present than there is in any standard electric device, for example, but you still need the oxygen for combustion (this is why there is so much nonsense talked about the 'CO₂ balance', which, if thought through to the end, could only mean 'Stop living!' – a bad solution for the individual, but for the long-term keeping in check of the number of these individuals in the interest of their well-being the very best one). Nuclear energy is the only exception; but although nuclear power stations are a thousand times less harmful than biodiesel (which is already sufficiently disquieting as such), especially in the long term, uranium supplies are very limited and winning energy from the fusion of light atomic nuclei will quite probably never be possible, as much as the media (who promised us faithfully that we would have an Aids vaccine 'soon' – 20 years ago, remember?) would, against their better knowledge, suggest the opposite. (There is no material that can withstand the temperatures required for nuclear fusion; the artificial magnetic fields that could act as a replacement consume considerably more energy than the nuclear fusion within can provide).

(namely Art. 3(3) and 33(2) and (3)). Consequently, the German Code of Criminal Procedure was deprived of its previously considerable elements of fairness, and the human rights of political prisoners lost their previous protection – in a certain way worse than merely killing them, because their human dignity became undermined in a way foreshadowing Guantánamo.

So the only thing left is birth control, but if it were to be applied worldwide (and this would be the only way to sustain it) there would be inexorable wage increases as a consequence, and not just compensation for inflation (the absence of the latter has, incidentally, more than halved our standard of living since the euro was introduced – the official inflation figures have only been correct for the last two years, which is why the government is shouting them out with the help of its accomplice STERN; they had been scaled down with breathtaking mendacity before then). So where is the price-wage spiral then, where is it!?! But higher wages, or even a standard of living to match that from twenty years ago are something soooo terrible...

Anyone who has a different opinion and who regards general wealth and an end to the present paternalism (and be only the one directed against smokers – and this is a non-smoker since birth writing, he swears it!) as a goal rather than an annoyance should after all give up their hesitation about taking note of us, the Alliance against Conformity. Because the only other real opposition to the globally directed cartel of political parties is the NPD³, and their manifesto is, on account of its limited nationalistic thinking – with today's means of transport and the American bombs a really suicidal policy! – and the birth propaganda they share with the governmental cartel, the exact opposite of ours, not to mention their insane ingratitude towards the historical workers' movement, their closeness to religion and their crazy and indeed very revolting anti-Semitism. There is no other Left but us; anything else that calls itself such is a fake, a test-tube baby of the media and its state apparatus. And the fact that the 'Greens' have only ever had coercion and renunciation in their minds, but never the protection of the natural environment, is proved by every second of their existence whenever there has been or is any mention of 'birth control'.

³ The NPD ('National Democratic Party of Germany') definitely stems, in terms of its membership, from Hitler's rightly ill-reputed NSDAP – to put it more precisely, from those 5 % of the latter's less known members that were not sucked up by the Social Democrats (SPD) and the Christian Democrats (CDU) which, under US guardianship, took up the vast majority of the NSDAP members, about 95 %, including really large-scale criminals such as Prime Minister Kopf (SPD, of course), and 'recycled' them – because their political task, first and foremost the persecution of communists, had, after all, not changed under their new, foreign masters. The NPD resisted this opportunism; which is why it never had the state's apparatus on its side, which in turn marks the most important test characteristic separating it from the NSDAP from its first hour onwards. Since, after the fall of the Soviet Union, the USA practises imperialism more openly, the NPD is now persecuted unfairly and lawlessly, because it is supposed to be able to become a nucleus of anti-imperialist opposition inside Germany. Probably because this suspicion is substantial, it has been able to obtain some regional electoral successes, and that even against the most vicious attacks by the press and the monopolies, in particular the banks, notwithstanding its attempted infiltration by our secret police, and many harassments. The NPD's internal ideology probably is, on the one hand, presently in a state of transition and will, on the other hand, also carry over many remnants from the Nazi era, particularly as regards national narrow-mindedness, fervent anti-communism, proreligious irrationalism and the rejection of birth control. Whether it continues to be truly racist, may be doubted.

The fight for freedom and well-being for all started eight hundred years ago in certain cities that had been able to break free from feudal hegemony; it became discredited when the Soviet Union degenerated and finally collapsed pitifully; so unfortunately we will have to start this fight again right from the beginning, slowly and from its foundations upwards, although for its success there is incomparably more knowledge and technology available today than there was when it originally began. However, both of these things are largely worthless without a reduction in population.

Of course, this insight is far from attractive. But one can always find something better than renunciation and the imposition of will – any time.

But not without us, not alone and not without effort. But even understanding before there is any chance of obtaining power or influence is more agreeable than swallowing, swallowing and obeying without any prospect whatsoever...

If you look for us, you will find us.

www.bund-gegen-anpassung.com